

I was speaking to a young Mum about a Bible for her children. I was taken aback when she said she did not think a Bible was important as the accounts of Jesus are in lots of children's books. I know owning a Bible is special to me. Actually owning several translations. On discussing this with other people I realise access to the Bible is now in many different ways. I have had to re-assess my feelings. Young people I spoke with access the Bible with a Bible app on smart phones, a daily Bible reading on smart phones, they have the Bible on a kindle and many have a CD in the car of the Bible to listen to.
